TRAVEL TIPS– Key Considerations

Have a list of all medications, dosage and frequency. Include the name and number of the prescribing doctor. Have an emergency health information card with the patient's name and how to handle a medical emergency with a list of contacts.

When traveling consider options for backup refrigeration in case of power failure.

A car refrigerator can be used to keep medicine cool while traveling. If flying keep STRENSIQ® in the cabin, do not check with luggage. Insulated travel cases are useful to keep medication protected and cold.

Consider access to alternative power options, such as a generator.
Monitor temperature with a thermometer. Note: WiFi thermometers may be impacted by power outages.

Sign up for power outage alerts.

Create a contingency plan for medication refrigeration and identify a person to transport it to an alternative storage location.

Identify fire station, pharmacy, hospital or other storage options and call in advance to confirm the ability to store refrigerated medication.
